THE INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF LAW, ETHICS, AND TECHNOLOGY is designed to understand all matters relating to law. While the Journal emphasizes theoretical work and broad issues arising from law to technology, no topic of legal interest and no approach to scholarship is excluded. The Journal welcomes outstanding original doctrinal and critical scholarship contributions to domestic and international law and comparative law legal history and legal philosophy. In addition, we welcome interdisciplinary contributions in areas of relevance to the law, particularly work that uses the techniques of the social sciences and the humanities to contribute to understanding legal studies.

RECOMMENDED CITATION FORM: Author, title of work, volume # INT'L J. L. ETHICS TECH. (specific Journal parallel cite) page on which article begins, span of specific pages cited (translator's name trans, year), URL. When the work has an editor or translator, include that information in the parenthetical. Give the editor's or translator's full name(s) followed by the abbreviation "ed." or "trans." as appropriate. Follow with a comma. All efforts should be made to cite the most stable electronic location available. For example:

Ge Zheng, Reconsidering Economic Development and Free Trade Taking China's Rare Earth Industry as An Example, Winter 2021 INT'L J. L. ETHICS TECH. 1, 3-4 (Yan Pan trans., 2021), <https://www.ijlet.org/w202101/>.
